

My son Ben used to sit in his car seat, holding his sippy cup, and any time we took a trip he deemed long, he would stare into the rearview mirror, and say, "How much more longer, Daddy?" Good question. Steve Elder, speaker, wealth advisor, professional coach, husband, and father, often counsels people about their life goals. His painful experiences—a near-death car crash and later a bankruptcy—led him to ask hard questions about his life's purpose: What is it that you want? And how much longer will you wait to honestly answer that question? With a passion born of deep trauma and tough choices, How Much More Longer will convince you that the time to decide how to live is now. Don't let the tone or the title of this book fool you. While the stories in it will make you smile, its messages are serious. What do you want? To live a real, transparent, full life, or continue walking on eggshells, failing to confront areas in your life that need attention? Filled with personal anecdotes, wise commentary, down-to-earth advice, and thought-provoking questions called On the Road to Real, this book challenges us to take action and claim the life we desire now.
