

Trouble at the Cottage is the first book in the Net of Lies teenage adventure series. Teenagers Leah and Kim meet at a Northern Ontario cottage resort, where their foolishness gives way to a near catastrophe, testing their friendship and forcing them to make the right choice despite the serious consequences. Marlese Nijanani Novalinga is the daughter of a European mother and an Aboriginal father. Marlese loves to write and her work has been repeatedly published in Canadian Living Magazine and Chatelaine, as well as many other Canadian publications. She was the runner-up in the Toronto Star short story contest a few years back. Marlese previously published a collection of Inuit stories. She is now working on the second book in the Net of Lies series, Trouble in the City.
